

I do not feel that the FCC should enact a law that preempts Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law, especially if it will lessen the Indiana "no call rule". It appears that it is being done to appease big business, especially credit card companies. They do not pay my telephone bill so I do not feel that they should get any more freedom to call. Telemarketers already abuse the privelidges they have now.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Clifton Myers
